Schools Opened in France for Soldiers

Government Is Providing

The Australian government has made elaborate arrangements for the education of men belonging to the Australian Imperial Forces in France. A correspondent describes these arrangements in "The Sydney Morning Herald"

as follows:

The opportunities provided by divisions for the instruction and general mental improvement of the men in the Australian Imperial Forces have been of great value since the armistice was signed. The 3d Division has been for three mentals in the neighborhood was signed. The 3d Division has been for three months in the neighborhood of Abbeville. Three valuable schools of agriculture have been running in the division. One is directly under divisional supervision, and the other two, in the 9th and 11th Brigades, are receiving a quota of men from the 10th Brigade. The divisional school is limited to a course of one month, which ited to a course of one month, which has enabled 100 men to attend.

Expert Is in Charge The school is situated with the 3d Divisional Train, thus receiving great advantage from the use of the work-advantage from the use of the workshops. The chief instructor was before enlistment a lecturer at Hawkesbury College. His lectures cover the theory of agriculture, chemistry of soils and the varying kinds of wheat. Other lecturers deal with dairying, agriculture, orcharding and poultry.

The mornings are devoted to work in the shops, including saddlery and farriery. A cookery school, teaching army and special cooking, feeds the agricultural students.

Other schools teach commercial and general subjects. With six weeks' instruction in commercial accountancy and shorthand a man can qualify for clerical work, which will put him on a confident footing when returning to civil life. This instruction would cost several guineas at a business college. several guineas at a business college. In the school on general subjects in-struction is given up to matriculation standard, the instructor being a Master
